

ENTRY MONOLOGUE

SCREEN-ACTING COURSE

If you are applying for the Advanced Actors course, please record yourself performing the short Course Entry Monologue below, and send it with your Application Form plus a link to your Showreel (if you have one) to: workshop@twentyninefive.group

If you do not have a video camera, you are welcome to record on your phone camera.

COURSE ENTRY MONOLOGUE

(note: this character can be any gender and any age)

Did you ever walk round here during the day? Ever get out of your posh little car? No. Thought not. You've never noticed all of the houses boarded up. How everything's grey, and miserable. No curtains at the windows. Just faces. Watching you. And nobody - not a single person - walking about. Maybe just a gang of kids, trying to tidy up the place with a vicious, old man watching them. Young kids doing a degrading job for degrading money. You've never noticed how people round here always leave one person in the house? They're terrified someone will break in and steal what little they have. People here are dead. (Pause) And then someone like you comes along. You think you can clean this place up. But you don't. You take kids from their parents, you send mothers to jobs a hundred miles away. You're not cleaning this place up. You're just putting all of the mess into smaller piles.
